From the Desk of Mark Pugh

Happy New Year! Winter landscaping is every bit as important if you want to have a great looking lawn and healthy, vibrant plants. With the arrival of winter and cold weather, it is essential to complete a few projects to keep your landscaping and garden protected through the dormant months. Prepared properly shrubs, trees, and grass will return healthy in the spring and will also leave you with a neat, well-tended winter landscape.

Pugh's Earthworks is your full service landscape, installation and maintenance company. No matter the season, let us take care of the work for you!

Pugh's Tips & Clips

Winter Plants...

Not all plants die in the winter, and evergreen trees are not just for the living room. There are many plants that thrive when it is cold outside, and can bring warmth and beauty to your backyard.

Evergreen trees are just one thing that can make you feel like you are walking through a colored Capra movie. Those are well-known, but also try planting berry trees, which bloom through the winter, and add an explosion of color to a dull sky. Apple trees bloom late in the fall, and so keep their vibrancy as winter progresses. Also, you get apples, and that isn't a bad thing. Pugh's Earthworks experts can help you design your yard and plant your trees.

If you refer a friend that utilizes our services, you will receive $100 off of your next improvement and/or upgrade of your current landscape maintenance or irrigation service. Please contact our office at 901-546-0099.

We do more than just plants. Refurbished hardscapes can protect and reinvigorate tired properties.
